HONOR OF THE MOUNTAIN PEOPLE.

Under this title THE CITIZEN published a series of articles last summer showing how large a proportion of the people of Eastern Kentucky are descended from good citizens who were soldiers in Washington's army. This series of articles attracted the attention and drew a great deal to improve the standing of the mountain people in the eyes of the world. By the request of several persons who have kept files of THE CITIZEN with the names of Revolutionary heroes which were then published, we reproduce this week our map of Eastern Kentucky showing how the counties were divided in the year 1834.

It is well worth while for every family to keep a record of its ancestry. The old fashioned way was to write down on the blank pages at the beginning of the family Bible the names of the man and his wife, when they began house-keeping, and to add one by one the names of their children, with the dates of their birth, marriage or death. From the old family Bibles in many cases people can trace the history which would otherwise be forgotten, and find out where their grand-parents and great grand parents came from, where they lived, what callings they followed, and many other interesting and instructive facts.

This map will enable many to know where their ancestors lived in 1834. The mountains and the rivers are the same, but the county lines have been greatly changed.

And, besides the honor which belongs to the families descended from the soldiers of the Revolutionary War, we have now the equal or greater honor which belongs to the families of those who fought in the great war for liberty and the Union. The keeping up of family records and history should not be merely a matter of vanity. It is a good thing for the boys and girls to realize that by their actions they will honor or disgrace the family name.

We can keep the record, and though we cannot improve that ancestry, we can by education and religion improve our posterity.

Pres. and Mrs. Frost Go Aboard.

Pres. and Mrs. Frost left early this morning for New York City, where on next Tuesday they will sail on a ship of the Cunard Line for Liverpool, England. From there they will go north through the Lake District to Glasgow, Scotland, will spend some time at Edinburgh, and then will go south through York, visiting Bedford, the home of John Bunyan, the author of "Pilgrim's Progress," and Epworth, the home of the Wesleys. From there they will go to Scrooby, whence the Pilgrim Fathers set sail for America, then to London and Liverpool, sailing for Montreal, Canada on August 25, and reaching Berea in time for the opening of the Fall Term.

This trip is taken through the kindness of friends, who provided the money. President Frost has consented to write an occasional letter to THE CITIZEN describing the interesting places visited.
